BEVERLY FISHMAN: T.N.N.
September 7 – October 7, 2017

Beverly Fishman's "The New Normal" ("T.N.N") is an anxious meditation on the American drug crisis. The paintings form a series of almost sinister shapes that appropriate the forms of various medications, such as Prozac, Vicodin, and Xanax. Fishman's acutely chromatic work is meticulously crafted from wood and coated in layer upon layer of paint to razor-sharp precision. Fishman manipulates color, line, and light to create streamlined objects. Her seductive abstract geometric forms become as addictive as the pills they mimic.

521 West 21st Street, New York, NY 10011

Opening reception on Thursday, September 7 from 6 – 8 pm
